

MERCED COLLEGE AGRICULTURAL AMBASSADORS

Sagebrush Memorial in memory of Sage Gilbert

Sage Gilbert was an excellent role model of the Merced College Agriculture Division and he was highly respected by his peers.

Sage was the kind of person who never knew a stranger. Friendly and jolly, he could brighten your day in an instant. A General Agriculture Major, Sage was determined to finish college and become a high school agriculture instructor. He would have made an outstanding teacher. He was extremely hard working, excellent with people, and was of the highest moral character.

Sage could fix or fit anything. He spent a tremendous amount of time working in our shop, assisting with the livestock at our school farm, and was a contributing member of his community. At nearly any time of the day, you could find Sage on our campus. If he wasn't in class, he was probably in the shop, or on the farm. Everyone seemed to know him.

Sage represented Merced College at the National Collegiate Livestock Contest in Louisville, KY as a member of the livestock judging team. He was active in the Merced College Blue Devil Aggies, the Young Cattleman's Association and served as an Agricultural Ambassador for the college.

Sage was happy, fun-loving, hard working, and optimistic. He will be greatly missed by all who knew him.

To honor Sage Gilbert, the Merced College Agricultural Ambassadors offer one-year scholarships to current Merced College Agriculture students who are active in the activities of the Division. These scholarships are cash awards and payable at the end of the semester.
